

Symposium Spotlight

Developing and Conducting Poultry Extension Programs for International Audiences

Chair: Kenneth W. Koelkebeck, University of Illinois

Monday, July 10th at 10:00 am ET

This symposium will focus on techniques to develop an international reputation in the poultry industry around the world. In addition, it will present information on how to interact with, and establish an international relationship with poultry producers.

- | | |
|----------|--|
| 10:00 am | Volunteering with the Farmer-to-Farmer Program in the Caribbean, Central America, Africa and Asia.
Jacqueline P. Jacob, University of Kentucky |
| 10:30 am | Getting started and working with international audiences.
Jonathan Moyle, University of Maryland |
| 11:00 am | Expecting the unexpected: Challenges and opportunities with international extension programs.
Darrin Karcher, Purdue University |
| 11:30 am | Evaluating and assessing the poultry industry in Russia.
Kenneth W. Koelkebeck, University of Illinois |