Why should I join the USA Branch of WPSA?

The World's Poultry Science Association (WPSA) promotes the advancement of scientific knowledge related to all aspects of poultry science and its application to the worldwide poultry industries. This is accomplished through the exchange of information among the various facets of the global poultry industry. WPSA and its branch organizations in the various countries promote regional conferences and symposia, and every four years, a World's Poultry Congress. These regional and worldwide conferences are arranged in cooperation with many industry organizations that are interested in the furtherance of these aims.

The USA Branch of WPSA is the official arm of the worldwide organization in the United States. The member-elected Board of Directors for the USA Branch business and an Annual Membership Meeting in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Poultry Science Association.

World's Poultry Congresses

Every four years, WPSA sponsors a World's Poultry Congress. Each Congress is held in a different country. Past Congresses were held in Amsterdam, The Netherlands (1992); New Delhi, India (1996); Montreal, Canada (2000); Istanbul, Turkey (2004); Brisbane, Australia (2008). Congresses provide opportunities for US scientists and industry members to make personal contacts with other poultry specialists around the world and to develop international trade relationships. They also provide scientists and industry leaders the chance to exchange information on new research and products that support the industry. The USA Branch provides a number of travel grants on a competitive basis to scientists presenting papers or posters at each World Congress. A few travel grants are also provided for members to attend WPSA-sponsored meetings outside the USA in the years between the World's Poultry Congresses.

WPSA Lecture

Each year at the annual meeting of the Poultry Science Association, the USA and Canadian Branches of WPSA sponsor a lecture by an internationally renowned scientist. Potential lecturers are nominated by the members of the two Branches.

World's Poultry Science Journal

This World's Poultry Science Journal (WPSJ) is published by the worldwide organization every three months. All papers included in the WPSJ are review articles that provide an excellent opportunity for members to keep themselves current on subjects ranging from the very basic aspects of poultry science to more applied topics on poultry management. All members of WPSA receive a subscription to the WPSJ as a part of their annual membership dues.
